Your guide to the winners & finalists at
Blas na hÉireann - The Irish Food Awards

*“Recognising & rewarding
the very best of Irish food & drink and the passionate people who make them”*

About Blas

Now in our 11th year Blas na hEireann continues to celebrate the very best of Irish food and drink. In 2018 the awards had over 2500 entries competing to take home Gold, Silver, Bronze and Finalist places. This year we continued to build upon opportunities for producers, with networking and educational events beginning to take place throughout the year, with more events planned for 2019.

A trusted accreditation and mark of Irish quality

Research has shown that the Blas accreditation has the highest recognition amongst Irish consumers and using the award logo on packs encourages shoppers to buy these products. It is their guarantee of a top quality Irish product.

Our Judges

Our judges come from a range of food backgrounds; they are chefs, restaurateurs, academics, journalists, authors, food champions, caterers and enthusiastic home cooks. Retailers with a vested interest or producers who have entered the competition are never involved in the judging process.

Finding the very best

Developed with UCC and the University of Copenhagen our judging process is now recognised as an industry 'gold' standard worldwide. Products entered are blind tasted and competition is extremely tough, and regardless of the number of entries there are only five finalists in each category.

Blind tasting means that all packaging and identifying features are removed from products before being presented for judging. This creates a level playing field for products from both large and small producers.

Our Winners & Finalists

Inside you will find the details of our Gold, Silver & Bronze winners listed by category and our finalists listed by county. We hope that you will find something new and exciting for your customers.

Questions?

If you have any questions about our winners or would like more information about Blas na hEireann and how we can work with you, to find new suppliers, to promote the Blas winners you stock or indeed to find out more about point of sale material, just get in touch, we will be happy to help.

We hope that you will find this a useful guide for sourcing Irish products and that many of the producers listed within, will become your suppliers of tomorrow.

I would also like to say a big thank you to all of our sponsors, supporters and team for their help in making this happen.

The Backyard at Blas was back for a 2nd year and was another successful weekend of positive conversations. The Backyard is a dedicated space for producers to meet their industry colleagues, gain knowledge & find support for their business.

We were delighted to be joined by an interesting and informative line up of speakers who shared their experiences to help producers develop & grow their business

The space was exclusively open to hosted guests, buyers, trade, press and finalist producers. It was a busy venue on the weekend of the awards as people used the venue to make new contacts and catch up with old friends.

The Backyard at Blas

Bank of Ireland

“Blas na hÉireann is the platform for any food producer in Ireland to receive the recognition they deserve for their fantastic produce. In banking circles, if Blas na hÉireann badge is on a product or we read it on a business plan it shows us that producer has an accolade measured against their peers in Ireland on their produce.

Even though food producers may win Blas awards, they often face cash flow & distribution challenges when wanting to take their products to the next level. Take for example the scenario where a food producer has won a Gold Award and is approached by one of the multiples, My advice is that they should not proceed too fast, nor be afraid to say no if their business is not ready to deliver on this ask straight away.

I would suggest that they revisit their business plan, if they already have one and keep it simple – certainly no more than five pages including achievable cash flow projections. They should engage with their bank as early as possible who will then help put together the best proposal for them. It’s worth taking the time at the start of your proposal as the food producer will then receive the advice that they really need from a financial perspective for their business and opportunity.”

CONVERSATIONS IN THE BACKYARD

SLOW AT WORK

Aoife McElwain & Pat Mulcahy in conversation about the topics explored in Aoife's book. After suffering an intense bout of burnout in 2015, Aoife became determined to cultivate a more sustainable approach to her work. Essentially how to slow down and still keep up.

ONLINE SALES

Is it a viable option to sell food and drinks online? Where do you even start? Sally McKenna hosts this panel which looks at the options for producers to sell online and panellists discuss their successes and failures with the medium.

FINANCIAL PLANNING FOR FUTURE GROWTH

Hosted by John McKenna, this panel discusses what questions you should ask when preparing for your business to seek financial assistance, whether that is applying for grant funding, preparing for a credit assessment or making a decision on scaling up.

THE DECISION IS YOURS...

It is important to remember that the business is yours and that sometimes the right decision is to say no. This conversation expands on the afternoon's Masterclass with Karen Tyner, Senior Manager at Bord Bia which looks at how to make strategic decisions.

ETHICS & METRICS

Dee Laffan interviews the team from London's renowned Borough Market on how they create an energetic and dynamic space for artisan producers whilst also supporting them with a strong business focus.

KAREN'S TIPS

1. Understand how you differ from your competition, what is your business, or products, unique selling point (USP). Remember your USP for one customer may not be the same for another customer.
2. Be prepared for your meetings with buyers. If a buyer has agreed to meet you, they are interested in your product. Be clear what you want to achieve from the meeting.
3. Have your proposal ready and have worked through the costings and implications of your plan B and C proposals too.
4. Be very clear of your costings and know what you can and can't offer, don't be afraid to ask for time either during a meeting, or agreement to revert after a meeting, if you are not sure you have sufficient information with you to make the right decision for your business.

Karen Tyner Senior Manager, Bord Bia

"We are delighted to partner with Blas na hEireann to create Backyard at Blas at the Blas na hEireann Irish Food Awards. Serving customers brilliantly and supporting communities to help them thrive is a key priority for Bank of Ireland. Backyard at Blas is an innovative breakout space and networking venue at the Awards. We saw many Irish producers visit the space, negotiate and complete deals. Many also said that they took away valuable lessons from the eight workshops over the two days.

Bank of Ireland has always played an active role in supporting Irish food businesses. The energy and passion that producers in this sector have for the work they do and the wonderful local Irish products they create is something we are proud to back. These producers source many of their inputs locally, making a significant contribution to the rural economy in Ireland."

Liam Sheedy, Director of Munster Bank of Ireland

Six things I've learned... a few words from Artie

Earlier in 2018 Artie was asked to share advice with producers. The advice he shared is very much how Blas na hEireann runs day to day and we thought we would share it with you here...

1 SHARING IS CARING

I left school on Friday and joined the crew of a fishing trawler the following Sunday evening as a share fisherman. Sharing wasn't so much about the money but about working as a team and sharing the workload, if you didn't do your share then it increased the workload on the rest of the crew. Doing more than your fair share is like saving for the future, so when a time comes and you are overwhelmed by the challenge you face your colleagues are more than willing to ease your burden.

2 R-E-S-P-E-C-T

When you are young you learn self-respect by giving respect to others you gain respect. Although you may not agree with others decisions you should always respect them.

3 LEAD FROM THE BACK

Never ask colleagues to undertake a task that you wouldn't do yourself, when faced with a pile of sh*t be the first to grab a shovel.

4 MAINTAIN YOUR ETHOS

When Blas was founded it was with 3 goals in mind. Firstly, to recognise the very best of Irish food and drink and reward the producers that made it.

Secondly, to create a network of Irish producers who could work together for the common good and lastly, to help the consumers at home and abroad to find the very best of Irish food and drink. When a decision is made at Blas we go back to these 3 goals and make sure that the outcome is in line with them. At Blas we continue to grow, engaging in more and more events, from public showcases to networking and panel discussion events like the Backyard. With each new step we continually check against our 3 objectives, it helps to keep us on track.

5 LEND AN EAR

Listening to what others have to say is how we learn, by listening you will hear ideas and opinions you may not have considered and be better able decide how to move forward. Listening is hearing a message and should not be confused with receiving an order. So listen, consider and then decide.

6 FAMILY

Lastly but by all means the most important is family, never make a decision until you have considered the impact on the family, yours, your colleagues and the people you deal with on a daily basis. If you make a decision that may have an adverse effect on family then you can be sure it's the wrong one. In times of great difficulty the first ones we reach out to are our families and because we treat them with consideration, care and respect they will always be the first to offer their support.

CONVERSATIONS IN THE BACKYARD

BACK TO SCHOOL

Many producers find success by constantly learning, not just from their own experiences but also through engaging with academia. There are very strong benefits and supports out there for producers who take time to work with their academic peers in the industry. Hosted by Brian McDermott.

BUYER BASICS

When pitching to a buyer there are questions that will arise again and again, regardless of the sector or level you are pitching to. This panel brings together buyers from high end, luxury to large scale retail and from independent stores to food service to discuss the simple basics.

IT'S PERSONAL

"Away from the bright lights of award ceremonies and the PR driven world of glossy marketing and social media, running a business can be fraught with challenges. While entrepreneurs and business owners may appear to have it all, they are not immune to the difficulties life can throw at them". The opening lines of Ruth O'Connor's Irish Times interview with Carol Walsh of Chameleon Restaurant starts this conversation, hosted by Joe McNamee, on the decisions you make when the business is your own and as such is intertwined into your personal life.

WORKING WITH CHEFS

For many producers finding a place on a chef's menu can be a turning point in their business. This panel will look at the key points you need to know when approaching a chef, the differences between retail and food service and how to achieve a successful relationship for both parties.

"It was a pleasure to be a part of the fantastic Blas na hEireann Irish Food Awards for a second year in a row, our unique Backyard @ Blas space has grown and developed over the last two years with a huge focus on networking and the relationship between the producers and all the key stakeholders in this sector.

Working in his space really gives you an insight into the team and family ethos that supports the span of companies within this

Tips for food producers who are considering training...

BACK TO SCHOOL

Sometimes the big challenge is to know 'what you don't know'. And then ask - is there a training course out there that would help you fill a gap in your knowledge and help you develop your food business?

But which course? There's actually quite a lot of choice – lots of courses are offered by third level institutions and other training bodies. Your choice will depend on the following:

- Are you looking for a part-time or full-time course?
- Should it be an accredited course (with a qualification) or 1 to 2-day workshop, or similar?
- Are you more available on a week day or at weekends?
- Is there funding available?
- What would you like to learn? Marketing/digital marketing, distribution? Food Processing, Equipment, Packaging? Management, Accounting? Food Safety, Plant Design, Food Regulations? All of the above?!

If you are looking for a food training course, and are part of a small company (or a start-up) I could suggest the part-time Diploma in Speciality Food Production..... it covers a wide range of subjects including all of the above, and more, and it is run mid-week, every few weeks or so. Other of our part-time Diplomas are aimed at those working in the large scale food industry and are delivered at the weekend. And if time is short or you know exactly what you want to learn then you could select a one to two-day short course on a specific topic, such as the Blas/UCC short course on Food Marketing/Digital Marketing.

Other non-obvious benefits of attending a training course would include the networking that happens between like-minded students, lecturers, and the guest lecturers (including graduate's/case studies). Feedback suggests that this contact and interaction is invaluable, and many producers continue to benefit from UCC's expertise long after the courses have finished. Importantly, producers have discovered afterwards that they can 'talk the talk' and are considered more credible in their dealings with regulatory, business development and funding agencies.

In our 25 years' experience we have never met anyone who has ever regretted completing a training course!

Dr Angela Sheehan Food Industry Training Unit, University College Cork

sector from the companies just starting out to the more established experienced businesses. Through these connections we have forged a better understanding of their needs and at Bank of Ireland we fully support the journey that all these businesses are on and look forward to connecting again through our local branches and community enterprise events".
